

Our Data is in a Limited-Access Environment

Our approach avoids the problems of the big online genealogy websites¹, which are open-access environments allowing anyone to upload and change data, resulting in duplication, lack of documentation, and errors.

In contrast, our data is maintained in a secure, limited-access environment that is then uploaded for viewing online on this website. We also periodically synchronize data with Familysearch.org, the largest online family tree, to also make it available there.

We encourage people to suggest additions or corrections to the data shown on this website. Please contact us if you have any suggestions or questions.
